

New head takes over at Cleve House School in Bristol

Clare Fraser has taken over as head teacher at Cleve House School and Preschool in Bristol after six years as deputy head

She succeeds Craig Wardle, who leaves the school in Knowle after six years as head to join Benedict House Preparatory School in Sidcup, southeast London.

Mrs. Fraser has worked at Cleve House for 12 years in total and she has also taught at several other local schools including Colston's Collegiate and St. Mary's Catholic Primary, in Bradley Stoke.

Established in 1937, Cleve House is situated on Wells Road and is a co-educational independent school and preschool for two to 11-year-olds.

"Every day I count my blessings to have stumbled across Cleve House School over 12 years ago," says Clare Fraser.

"Having taught in several Bristol establishments for over 30 years I can categorically say that this school is the happiest that I've had the pleasure of working in.

"Our uniform and our ethos mark us out as a traditional independent school but in reality, we offer so much more. Our parents are a community of hard-working families, all whom have witnessed the transformation of their children, who experience first-hand the life-long benefits of a good education, self-confidence, good manners and mutual respect.

"Our school motto is 'Teaching To Reach', and this applies as much to our staff striving for the best in everything they do as much and stretching themselves that little bit further, as it does to our pupils.

"I would like to thank Mr. Wardle for all his great work over the past six years and I look forward to taking Cleve House forward into its next chapter."
